

I. Goal of the Conference

To improve the competitiveness of talents and industries, the Executive Yuan (Taiwan) issued the “Blueprint for Developing Taiwan into a Bilingual Nation by 2030” in December 2018 to facilitate the improvement of students’ English proficiency. Base on this policy, the Ministry of Education launched the Program on Bilingual Education for Students in College to build a bilingual teaching and learning environment for universities and colleges, and in turns improve the English proficiency of students in higher education and the international competitiveness of universities in Taiwan.

In the light of this, National Taiwan Normal University will host the International Conference on English Medium Instruction (EMI) in Higher Education: Challenges and Prospects on the 15th to 16th of June, 2022. It is believed that the symposium will serve as a platform for participants from different countries, institutes, and disciplines, and will further facilitate the discussion between academics and practitioners on EMI-related topics. Besides, it is expected that an edited book, with papers contributed by presenters of the symposium, will be published in Spring 2023.
